FROM OTHER PENCILS

Two wives got Collins fourteen years in prison. How many centuries would he have to serve if he married as often as Hoch?

Three of the worst outlaws in Indian Territory are sons of a former justice of the supreme court of that territory. It is a good thing that the judge did not decide to raise a large family.

The automobile was responsible for eighty-five deaths in this country last year. That puts foot-ball out of the running, but prize-fighting is still in the ring.

The president of Argentina died suddenly, of bronchitis. He was lucky, most South American presidents who die suddenly go hence by the gun-powder route.

A San Francisco newspaper puts forth the idea that the young folks should run the Fourth of July celebration. It will be considerable of a surprise to many to learn that the kids don't run it already.

The San Francisco Bulletin publishes a cartoon of Charley Shortridge. Even the dead are not sacred to the Bulletin, it seems.

Both of Collins' wives have forgiven him. Perhaps it is just as well for him that he is in jail.

Ely, White Pine county, will bid for Tonopah ore when the proposed smelting plant is completed there.

Dwight A. Dawson has been recommended for reappointment to his present position of postmaster at Reno.

Denver citizens have subscribed $100,000 for the reception of the Elks during the Grand Lodge session in that city.
